BAND 7 SAMPLE

The line graph compares information regarding the number of participants in different activities, such as film clubs and martial arts, at one center in Melbourne over a 20-year period from 2000 to 2020.

Overall, it can be clearly seen that the number of participants in Film Club remained the highest, whereas that of other activities experienced a fluctuating trend throughout the given period.

Starting in 2000, at 65 people, the number of attendees of Film Club was the highest, followed by martial arts and amateur dramatics at almost 40 and 25 people, respectively. It is interesting to note that while the number of attendees in Film Club remains the highest despite a slight decline in 2005, that of other activities fluctuated. For example, amateur dramatics decreased in the number of participants from 25 to 20 in 2010.

From 2010 onwards, the number of participants in table tennis and musical performances increased dramatically and peaked at xx and xx, respectively, in 2020. On the other hand, this number of amateur dramas declined significantly, reaching the lowest point at xx in the same year, overtaken by music performances in 2015.

BAND 7 Example:

The maps compare the transformation of a harbor over a 24-year period from 2002 to today.

Overall, various changes can be noticed, including the transformation of the castle into a hotel, the addition of cafes and shops, and the relocation of the marina for private yachts.

Beginning with the eastern part of the map, while the castle has been repurposed into a hotel located in the southern section, one more dock for passenger ferries has been constructed near the old one. Interestingly, whereas the area for lifeboats has remained unchanged, the public beach next to the old castle has been transformed into a private one for hotel customers.

In terms of the western section of the maps, although the two car parks have remained untouched, one of the showers and toilets located in their proximity has been demolished. It is interesting to note that there has been a relocation of the areas dedicated for the marina for private yachts and fishing boats over the given period.

BAND 7 EXAMPLE:

The diagram illustrates the process of producing biofuel named ethanol from start to completion.

Overall, the process entails 8 steps, starting from growing plants and trees for ethanol and culminating in this biofuel being used for different purposes, such as for cars and trucks.

To begin with, plants and trees are planted where energy from sunlight and carbon dioxide is used before they are harvested. Subsequently, the harvested plants and trees undergo the pre-processing process in order to create cellulose as a by-product.

In terms of the production process of ethanol, after cellulose is processed, sugars are made an outcome. In the following phase, a variety of microbes are added/incorporated into the sugars made from the processing step, which results in ethanol. In the final step, ethanol is utilized for a number of purposes, ranging from cars to airplanes. However, it is interesting to note that these vehicles emit/release CO₂, which* will in turn be used as a source for growing plants for ethanol.

BAND 7 EXAMPLE:

Whereas the pie chart compares information regarding the locations of dance classes attended by young people in Australia, the bar chart shows the kinds of these classes by different age groups.

Overall, it can be clearly observed that while the majority attend private studios, ballet is the most popular class among people in the under-11 age group.

Starting with the locations of these classes, the largest proportion attend private studios, accounting for 48%, although only 10% use college-based studios, which makes up the lowest percentage. It is interesting to note that 24% of young individuals use school halls after school for dancing.

In terms of the types of classes, ballet is the most popular among children under 11 years old with over 600 enrollments*, whereas modern dance is the least popular in this age group with only 300 students. On the other hand, modern dance has the highest number of participants aged between 11 and 16 years old with over 520 students*; meanwhile, ballet has the lowest number of students in this age range.

DISCUSS BOTH VIEWS

WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

Some people think that competition at work, at school and in daily life is a good thing. Others believe that we should try to cooperate more, rather than competing against each other.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience.

Write at least 250 words.

ESSENTIAL VOCAB

- allow/ enable someone to do something

COMPETITION

- productivity, efficiency, competitiveness, innovation (n.)
- productive, effective, competitive, innovative (adj.)

COOPERATION

2. View 1

- competition is good

- Example -> Apple -> efficiency / innovation

3. View 2

- cooperation is good
- because lead to harmony -> support better working environment
- example -> Microsoft => innovative products.

4. conclude (my view)

- I believe that -> balance is the best
- because -> not only competitiveness // collaboration => cohesive working spaces

While it is widely argued by some that competition is the best way to live, others might argue that collaboration is the optimal approach in personal and professional lives. Both points of view and reasons why I firmly believe that finding the balance between the two is the most important will be elaborated on in this essay.

To begin with, it might seem reasonable for some to claim that competition should be encouraged for people in this day and age. To explain it simply, this is because it can foster productivity; therefore, this can be beneficial for companies. For example, Apple has been encouraging its employees to compete against one another in order to launch the most innovative products to the market.

On the other hand, opponents of this idea might propose that collaboration should be prioritized instead of competition. This is due to the fact that cooperative environments can promote better teamwork; thus, this can encourage people to be more motivated to work. Take Microsoft, for instance; employees of this company have been encouraged to collaborate in order to combine their different fields of expertise to create the most groundbreaking products and services.

In conclusion, I would personally argue that finding the balance between competition and collaboration is the most necessary step in today's world. My reasoning is that while competitive environments can result in higher competitiveness, a collaborative society can increase social cohesion, which is the key to long-term success. As a result, companies should support both competition and collaboration to maximize the potential of individuals in society regardless of their age.

WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

The working week should be shorter and workers should have a longer weekend.

Do you agree or disagree?

- Mini-conclusion -> it's clear that shorter week is good

4. conclude (my view)

- Conclusion
 - although it is undeniable that (body 1), I am of the opinion that (body 2) as lead to balance for employees

While it is widely argued by some that a shorter working week is detrimental to companies, others might claim that this can be beneficial, especially for employees' wellbeing. I personally hold the belief that it is positive progress for society as a whole, and my reasons will be elaborated on in this essay.

To begin with, it might seem reasonable for some to believe that a longer working week is better for companies. To explain it simply, this is because this can allow employees to work more; therefore, it can promote increased productivity for corporations/ firms. For example, in 2021, Toyota tried to implement a 4-day work policy, which resulted in decreased productivity and loss of profits. From this perspective, it is logical why some would argue against a shorter working week.

On the other hand, I would personally propose that shorter work hours per week can be beneficial for communities. This is due to the fact that it can enable workers to recharge sufficiently; thus, it can lead to professional satisfaction. For instance, studies in the US in 2021 found that firms that allowed workers to work 4 days per week instead of 5 experienced a 40% increase in efficiency and motivation of employees. In this sense, it is evident that longer weekends can be promising for both corporations and employees in the long run.

In conclusion, although it is undeniable that a longer work week can bring about more competitiveness for companies in some cases, I am of the opinion that a shorter work week is a sustainable/ excellent solution as it can foster higher balance and satisfaction, which will benefit companies in the long term.

POSITIVE OR NEGATIVE?

WRITING TASK 2

You should spend about 40 minutes on this task.

Write about the following topic:

In many countries nowadays, consumers can go to a supermarket and buy food produced all over the world.

Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

- I think more food is bad
- because -> loss of cultural identity, moreover, environmental impacts
- example -> surveys in 2020 found that Thai -> are not familiarized with traditional thai food
- Mini-conclusion -> it's clear that

4. conclude (my view)

- Conclusion
 - although it is undeniable that (body 1), I am of the opinion that (body 2) as

While it is widely argued by some that the availability of international food in supermarkets is a promising development, others might claim that this is detrimental to small businesses, among others. I personally hold the belief that this is negative progress, and my reasons will be elaborated on in this essay.

To begin with, it might seem reasonable for some to believe that more selections in one supermarket is a positive trend. To explain it simply, this is because it offers more diversity; therefore, consumers can have more selections from all over the world. Take Villa Market in Bangkok, for example; clients have access to food imported from different parts of the world, ranging from apples from China to cheese from France. From this perspective, it is logical why some would argue that this is a positive development for society as a whole.

On the other hand, I would personally argue that this is detrimental for communities and individuals. This is due to the fact that it can not only lead to the loss of cultural identity but it can also cause environmental impacts, such as pollutions from the international/ transnational transport of goods. For instance, surveys in 2020 found that 50% of Thai children were not familiarized with traditional Thai food; instead, they preferred international food. In this sense, it is evident that the availability of international food can be detrimental to cultural uniqueness.

In conclusion, although it is undeniable that the import/ sales of international food in supermarkets is beneficial for consumers in terms of the diversity of choices, I am of the opinion that this can bring about negative outcomes for cultural identity.

It is important for everyone, including young people, to save money for their future.

4. conclude (my view)

While it is widely argued by some that everyone should save money for their future, others might claim that this is not always necessary. I personally hold the belief that saving money should be an essential aspect of life regardless of people's age, and the reasons will be elaborated on in this essay.

To begin with, it might seem reasonable for some to believe that saving money is not crucial. To explain it simply, this is because they have the belief that money should be used to buy freedom; therefore, it should be utilized for immediate happiness. For example, surveys in 2023 in Bangkok found that 40% of Gen Z spent over half of their spending on travel, which they believed was more important than saving. From this perspective, it is logical why some might argue against excessive saving.

On the other hand, I would personally argue that keeping money for the future is a vital part of everyone's life. This is due to the fact that the future is unstable; thus, having money saved in the account can be financial protection for the unexpected events. Take Covid-19, for instance; due to layoffs during the lockdown, over 100,000 Americans became homeless due to reckless spending when they had a job. In this sense, it is evident that it is better to save money instead of spending all of one's income.

In conclusion, although it is undeniable that money can enable individuals to purchase liberty to a certain extent, I am of the opinion that it is imperative to keep some of one's revenue for the unpredictable future.
