It is believed that high school students must participate in mandatory community service such as working for charities, cleaning the community and giving lessons to children. I agree with the statement and my reasons will be explained in this essay.

To begin, before going to university and starting their first job, high school students should learn about the importance of their community. To explain, even though many students excel academically, they seem to lose touch with their community. By helping their community, they could get to know more about people in their community. I, for example, volunteered to teach children when I was in high school, and I learned that there are many underprivileged students in many community that need academic assistance. From this perspective, it is clear that by participating in charity works, students will be more aware of their community before entering university.

Another reason why I agree that unpaid community service should be mandatory is that it allows students to appreciate the work of those who are invisible such as trash collectors. While it is essential for students to pay attention to their university entrance exams, it is equally crucial for them to know that there are those whose hard work for the community that get ignored. For example, high schoolers can learn how exhausting it is to keep the community clean by collecting trash for a day. Therefore, community service can be considered as an integral part of high school education.

In conclusion, while it is crucial for students to focus on their studies before entering university, it is also important for them to understand the value of community through compulsory community service. (276 words)
